

Press Release : HIFraser Group is proud to become the Australian in-country partner for Langa Industrial, designer and manufacturer of ground support equipment.

Australian owned HIFraser Group, a group of highly specialised providers of defence, technical, engineering and manufacturing solutions to a diverse range of national industries, and Langa Industrial, a European designer and manufacturer of aerospace and defence equipment, have signed an exclusive collaboration agreement for the supply and ongoing support of products to Australia.

After more than 50 years of experience, Langa Industrial have grown a long standing global reputation as designers and manufacturers of the highest quality ground support equipment for defence and commercial aircraft.

Langa's products include tripods and axle jacks, towbars and service carts. They also offer control, testing and maintenance systems to monitor aircraft lifting and lowering operations, platforms, access stairs and wheel & brake changing equipment.

It is because of their global reputation and commitment to improving their customers' business that HIFraser Group is proud to partner with Langa Industrial, providing these innovative products and on-going support to our local defence and commercial aerospace market.

In order to provide the best quality service and support across the Group, all defence enquiries will be handled by our industry specialists at HIFraser, and all commercial aerospace will be directed to our Eastern Automation team, specialists in manufacturing and hydraulic componentry.

About Langa Industrial

Langa Industrial was founded by Emilio Langa in Madrid in 1970 as a small workshop for the production and repair of hydraulic components. During the 70s and 80s, the company experienced great growth designing and manufacturing hydraulic systems and more complex innovations for the civil, industrial and defence engineering sectors. Langa remains a family-owned company, with the second generation overseeing its management and ensuring its future as one of the main developers and producers of Ground Support Equipment globally.
